fuses to Be Instructed or the Code.

This is the last day on which Re corder Smyth can occupy the beach of the Court of General Sessions upon which he has sat for fifteen years, lacking one month. Shortly before noon Recorder Smyth took his seat on the bench, and was at once confronted with a plea for mercy from Henry Dally, jr., attorney for Cor-nelius P. Griffiths, a white-haired book-keeper, who was indicted on April 18 of this year for forging checks on Everall Bros., 256 Fifth avenue.

The attorney read an affidavit setting forth all the reasons why mercy should be extended to his client, and also stating that his side would generously overlook the various clerical errors in Griffith's indictment for which the District-Attorney was responsible.

Recorder Smyth, who, up to that time, had paid but scant attention to the attorney's words, looked more than usually annoyed, and said:

"Where is Mr Macdona, the Assistant District-Attorney who had charge of the case? He ought to be here to answer for the papers. I shall let the case go over until Mr. Macdona or some one who is authorized to represent him can appear." PREDERICK SMYTH.

over until Mr. Macona or some one who is authorized to represent him can appear."

Assistant District-Attorney Osborne hurriedly arose to act in his colleague's behalf, but the Recorder impatiently waved him aside, while the counsel for the defendant protested that the point was one of no importance, and would be willingly conceded by his side without interposition fron the Court.

"The case must go over until this afternoon," said the Recorder.

"Now, it is perfectly clear," exclaimed Mr. Osborne, opening a copy of the code that lay on the Recorder's desk. "Listen! The Court says"—

"What Court says?" interrupted the Recorder, with great suddenness. "You mean the code says.

"Now, you needn't read any further," said the Recorder. "I ought to know what the code says by this time, and I rule that the case go over until this afternoon, or until Mr. Macdona can be found. Let the prisoner be remanded."

be found. Let the prisoner be remanded."
The next case to come up before the Recorder was that of Henry Hosler, a swindler who defrauded a number of poor lads out of employment by a bogus employment agency, in which considerable deposits of money for future good conduct was required. His attorney likewise presented appeals for clemency. "All this is not matter that should be brought before me. It should go rather before the Governor. He alone has the power of Executive cemency, as you should know," said the Recorder. "By some bogus company this fellow has swindled a number of honest young men who wished to earn their living. There is a perfect nest of these fellows down here on Park Row and Centre street, who have nothing else to depend on for their living but their swindling operations. My sentence is three years and six months in State prison."

ASTOR'S NUPTIAL TRUST.

His Wife. Charles D. Burrill has passed upon the accounts of James Gallatin and John Jacob Astor, trustees under the ante nuptial agreement made Sept. 19, 1853, tr contemplation of the marriage of Willam Astor and Caroline Webster Scherlam Astor and Caroline Webster Schermerho n. He shows that the trusts and accruments amounted in 1887, when there was an accounting, to $227,000. The principal was for the use of William for life, with remainder to his issue.

The referee finds that under the various trusts created in that connection $92,565 should be held for Caroline W.
Astor for life, and she should get half the interest on some stocks. It is found that John Jacob Astor should take absolutely $134,120 of what now constitutes the trust.

AT A BREAK-NECK SPEED.

Earle, of Gov. Flower's Staff,

Near y Run Down. Gen. Earle, of Gov. Flower's staff came near to being run down by a day afternoon while driving through Central Park with his wife. He was coming down the east drive near One Hundredth street, when the four-wheel ed vehicle, driven by Peter Miller, Washington Market butcher, came dash ing along. With keen foresight the General ordered his driver to pull out of Miller's path. The two vehicles had a collision and gave the General and his wife a slight shaking up.

Miller had been drinking freely. He drove away without waiting to see if he had done any damage. Later he narrowly escaped running down a boy. A policeman's attention was called to Miller's wild driving and gave chase. Miller whipped up his horses, and was on the wrong side of the road. At the Eighty-seventh street bend he came in collision with a two-wheeled vehicle driven by Richard Goldberry, of 138 West Fifty-fourth street, who was going in the opposite direction.

The vehicles came together with a crash, upsetting and smashing them. Miller was thrown out. He escaped with superficia. injuries. Goldberry was pulled from beneath his wagon. He was dragged a distance by his horse before he was rescued. His right arm was bruised and lacerated, and his body was sore from the shaking and dragging he received.

Mounted Park Officer McNulty arresting along. With keen foresight the Gen-ordised and lacerated, and his body was sore from the shaking and dragging he received.

Mounted Park Officer McNulty arrested Miller. Both vehicles were wrecked on the way to the arnsenal the General met them. He expressed indignation at the wild driving by Miller. He told the officer it was the most reckless piece of work he had ever witnessed. In the Yorkville Police Court this morning, Miller said he could not help it. He compromised with Goldberry with an offer to pay all expenses. He was discharged.

H. Nicholsburg, a carriage-builder, was arrested in the Park yesterday. He was coming along the east drive, near Bixty-fourth street, in a two-wheeled gig, racing with a light earriage. According to Mounted Squad Officer Doyle, several collisions were narrowly averted. He was fined $3, which he paid.

The stolid indifference with which the Wholesale Bakers' Association re-gards the demands of the people for cheaper bread has not changed. The ne of monopolists.

The position of the Trust may be summed up like this:

"We are rich; we have the upper hand; our profits have been so immensed during the time that flour has been so cheap that we are prepared to fight jo spros pio equ uprupusu or pue equ so prices; it is too good a thing to lose without a struggle.

As has been told time and time again in these columns, the price of a loaf of bread baked by the Trust is one-fifth more than it should be.

With flour cheaper than it ever was before; with the market so glutted with it that millers are willing to get rid of it at heretofore unheard-of figures, the Wholesale Bake.s' Association calmiy continues to charge an exorbitant price for its eighteen-ounce loaf, and compels the comsumer to add to the already overflowing coffers of the Trust.

Any effort to reason with members of the combine is futile. They admit that other bakers make fair profits on the sale of eighteen-ounce loaves at three cents wholesale, but declare that with their own improved facilities and labor-saving machinery they cannot compete with the smaller concerns.

The action of most of the five that with their own improved facilities and labor-saving machinery they cannot baken. She said Lynch was about fifty or fifty-two, she was not sure which, a cent a loaf or increasing by several ounces the weight of their five cent was about fit or fifty-two, she was not sure which, as shown by the greater sales and the attendant prosperity of the fair-minded bakers.

Within the last few days the Italian bakers of this city and Brooklyn, in either making the reduction of a cent a loaf or increasing by several ounces the weight of their five cent loaves, is appreciated by the public, as shown by the greater sales and the attendant prosperity of the fair-minded bakers.

Within the last few days the Italian bakers of this city and Brooklyn have fallen in line, and full-weight loaves can now be bought at the Italian bakers for three cents, if delivered at the consumer's home.
